Cyber Security Tips

FOUR WAYS TO SPOT A SCAM

THEY COME AS FRIENDS

Frauds typically act like they are contacting you on behalf of the government or a company that you know, like a utility, a tech company, or even a charity soliciting donations.

YOU'VE EITHER WON OR YOU'RE IN TROUBLE

Some scammers try to scare you into thinking you are in trouble with the government like you owe the IRS. Perhaps they say a family member or friend is having an emergency, your computer has a virus or there's a problem with your account - all they need is to verify some personal info. On the flip side, they may congratulate you on winning a lottery or contest, but they need a fee so you can claim your prize.

YOU HAVE TO ACT NOW

Scammers want to get your info before you have time to second-guess yourself. They don't want you to have time to double check their story. They might even threaten to arrest or sue you.

ONLY ONE WAY TO PAY

Scammers often insist that you send money through a transfer company or put money on a gift card. Others will send YOU a fake check, tell you to deposit it (don't), then withdraw the deposited funds and send them the money. These checks will bounce, causing you to perhaps inherit bounced check fees from the bank. Don't do it.

What to do if you receive a scam email, call, or text.

Email or Text

If you suspect that an email or text you receive is a phishing attempt:

- Take a deep breath. In most cases, it's perfectly safe to open a scam email or text. Modern mail apps, like Gmail, detect and block any code or malware from running when you open an email. The key is not to click links or download any attachments.
- Do not download any attachments in the message. Attachments may contain malware such as viruses, worms, or spyware.
- Do not click links that appear in the message. Links in phishing messages direct you to fraudulent websites.
- Do not reply to the sender. Ignore any requests from the sender and do not call any phone numbers provided in the message.

1. Report it. Help fight scammers by reporting them. Forward suspected phishing emails to the Anti-Phishing Working Group at reportphishing@apwg.org. If you got a phishing text message, forward it to SPAM (7726). Then, report the phishing attack to the FTC at reportfraud.ftc.gov.

Call

If you receive a phone call that seems to be a phishing attempt:

- Hang up or end the call. Be aware that area codes can be misleading. If your Caller ID displays a local area code, this does not guarantee that the caller is local.
- Do not respond to the caller's requests. Financial institutions and legitimate companies will never call you to request your personal information. Never give personal information to the incoming caller.
- If you feel you've been the victim of a scam, and you did provide personal or financial information, contact your bank immediately at their publicly listed customer service number. Often, this is found on the back of your bank card. Be sure to include any relevant details, such as whether the suspicious caller attempted to impersonate your bank and whether you provided any personal or financial information to the suspicious caller.
